About the Book

In her memoir, Tasting Notes From Marriage, Victoria James explores the complexities of marriage through the lens of cooking and dining together. The book is a love letter to the institution of marriage, with all its joys and challenges.

James, a food and travel writer, weaves together personal anecdotes, recipes, and reflections on the nature of marriage. She writes about the early days of her marriage, when she and her husband were still learning how to live together and navigate the challenges of everyday life. She also writes about the challenges they faced later in their marriage, such as the death of a loved one and a period of unemployment.

Through it all, James finds solace and connection in the act of cooking and dining together. She writes about the meals they share, the conversations they have, and the way that food can bring people together.
