- Excessive debt: Governments, businesses, and individuals are all drowning in debt. This debt is unsustainable and will eventually have to be repaid, with devastating consequences.

- Low interest rates: Central banks have kept interest rates artificially low for years in an attempt to stimulate economic growth. This has created a bubble in asset prices that is now starting to burst.
- Trade wars: The escalating trade war between the United States and China is disrupting global trade and damaging the economies of both countries.
- Political instability: The rise of populism and nationalism around the world is creating uncertainty and making it difficult for governments to cooperate.

Dr. Ross warns that if we do not take action to address these risks, the consequences will be dire. The financial crisis could lead to a global recession, widespread unemployment, and social unrest. He urges governments to take steps to reduce debt, raise interest rates, and resolve trade disputes.

Time For Concern is a wake-up call for anyone who is concerned about the future of our economy. Dr. Ross's analysis is clear and concise, and his recommendations are both practical and essential.
